Subject (in full) Press Report regarding rice stored on unoccupied bank premises on Honan Road.

Made by and Forwarded by D.I. Crawford

With reference to the attached translation of extract from the Lieh Pao of March 23, 1940, regarding rice being stored in the former premises of Agricultural Bank, Honan Road, enquiries show that this address is 515 Honan Road, and is to be occupied by a new bank called Woo Ming Bank (滬民銀行), sponsored by the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Revenue Bureau, 230 Kiukiang Road.

On March 22, approximately 1,000 bags of rice were removed to this place under the escort of three Japanese in civilian clothes and are at present stored there guarded by men belonging to the Revenue Bureau.

RICE BEING STORED IN AN UNOCCUPIED BANK

At about noon last Thursday as I was walking along Honan Road, I noticed a number of coolies engaged in storing rice in the vacant premises of the former Agricultural Bank. The rice was stored so high that it could be seen by pedestrians on the footpath of the street. It is not known whether such a large quantity of rice is being kept by hoarders or by people undertaking the cheap sale of rice.

Subject Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhui Revenue Bureau - examination of cadets.

Made by and

Forwarded by D. I. Crawford

Between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., 2.2.40, an examination was held of registered tax bureau cadets of the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhui Revenue Bureau, with offices at 230 Kiukiang Road. The examination took place in the No. 2 Primary School of the Shaoshing Fellow Countrymen's Association, 189 Pao An Li (宝安里), off North Szechow Road when some 254 candidates attended. Mr. Hong Tu (洪图), headmaster of the above-mentioned primary school, undertook the task of examiner; and the examination passed off without any untoward incident.

It is reported that it is the intention of the Revenue Bureau to build an academy for the training of those cadets and efforts are being made to locate a suitable site for this purpose. It is expected that the project will be accelerated because of the urgent necessity of accommodating the qualified candidates.

Mr. Hong Tu will be appointed principal of the proposed school when it is established.

Subject Attached applications for transmission of bulletproof vest and guns for attendants' licences.

Made by _____ and Forwarded by Supt. Tan Shun Liang

Zau Jih Chun (邵式軍), mentioned in attached applications, is a relative of the Sheng Lung Tao family. Being an old employee of the Consolidated Tax Bureau he was recommended to the present post by one Li Han Ching (李漢清) whose antecedents were reported on previously. Taking advantage of the unsettled situation in Shanghai when he took charge Zau, it is reported, made an agreement with the Japanese according to which he was entitled to a commission for the collection of revenue and through this has made a large fortune. The other financial organizations which were formed later like the Salt and Saltpetre offices, have been working on a "pay" system, i.e. they have to send all proceeds to the Japanese besides defraying their own expenses. An attempt was made on the life of Zau on October 17, 1934, when he was travelling on a motor coach in an armoured car.

There appear to be no objection to the transfer of the attendants' licences subject to a test being given in the use of guns.

Zau himself is also applying for a licence to carry firearms. It is reported that he is a heavy opium smoker and is not physically fit to carry firearms. I also suggest that he be subject to a test in the use of a pistol before he is given a licence.

Dear sir,

Happy to know that you have been promoted to the chief officer of the political department of the Shanghai Municipal Council. We always admire you because you are just and impartial. So we congratulate you, we wish to thank for your work to all Shanghai community, and to offer you with one information of great importance to your good self.

Do you know why your recent promotion is very much disliked by Japanese people? The causes and effects we now wish to unveil.

We know your No. 1 detective Shih Chi Liang has through various unjust means squeezed immense money deposited in foreign banks. He can use such ways because his former boss is so intimate with him that Shih is known outside as his "adopted son", and is used to flatter all foreign officers.

Now your promotion and the transfer of his former superior official are hated by him, he openly expressed recently on a friend's banquet. He has also close connections with Japanese Consulate, Reform Government and all Wang Ching wei figures, no wonder you are disliked. This is only his primary efforts; you will see major ones later.

This information must keep secretly for your good self.

Yours faithfully,

Sincere Reports.

With reference to the attached translation of a report which appeared in the Sin Shun Pao of 9-11-39 in connection with the prohibition by the Reformed Government Authorities of the establishment of branch offices by the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau in areas under the jurisdiction of the Reformed Government, I have to state that the report is untrue.

It is a fact, however, that the branch offices of the Consolidated Tax Bureau function independently of the Reformed Government in such cities as Soochow and Wusieh, and that the latter has ever since its inauguration been desirous of taking over these tax offices but so far no action has been taken to effect this. All the branch offices are still functioning as usual.

The Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau was inaugurated in early 1938 by Zau Shih-chun (邵式軍) at 230 Kiukiang Road with the support of Rear-Admiral S. Kusumoto (楠本) when the latter was in charge of the local office of the Japanese Special Service Section. Subsequently in recognition of his merits in maintaining this tax-collecting organ, Rear-Admiral Kusumoto, it is said, was given the rank of Vice-Admiral by His Majesty the Japanese Emperor. Vice-Admiral Kusumoto is now the Deputy-Chief of

It is stated that a sum of over $1,000,000 is remitted to Japan monthly by the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau.

Since June, 1938, the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau has been paying a monthly sum of $300,000 to the Reformed Government in Nanking, but the latter is still unsatisfied with this remittance. As a result, unfounded rumors alluding to the taking over of the branch offices of the Bureau have been circulated from time to time.

BRANCHES OF CONSOLIDATED TAX BUREAU BEING SUPPRESSED

In connection with the establishment of branches by the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau for the collection of wine and tobacco taxes in Kiangsu Province, the Kiangsu Provincial Government has now been instructed by the Executive Yuan of the "Reformed Government" to prohibit such establishments. Consequently, the Soochow Police Bureau, of which Tung Yeu-yen (董支賢) is the Commissioner, has been instructed to order the removal of the signboard of the Soochow Branch of the Consolidated Tax Bureau. The various Hsiens in Kiangsu Province have been notified accordingly by the Finance Department of the Kiangsu Provincial Government.

As a branch of the Consolidated Tax Bureau is also in existence in Wusih, the Wusih Police Bureau has been instructed to order the removal of its signboard. The branches of the Tax Bureau at Wusih, Changchow and Kiangyin will also be removed. Merchants have also been informed not to pay consolidated taxes to any of the branches of the Bureau.

The consolidated tax was first introduced by the Ministry of Finance of the National Government in January, 1928, and shortly afterwards was enforced in the Shanghai Settlements in an unofficial manner. On February 1, 1931, the Chinese government authorities and the Consular Body reached an agreement for the levy in the Settlement of consolidated tax on rolled tobacco only, although elsewhere the tax is applicable to other articles such as flour, matches, cotton yarn, cement, beer, alcohol, foreign wine and spirit, native tobacco and native wine. This agreement, in theory, is still in force after the withdrawal of the recognised Chinese authorities from Shanghai towards the end of 1937.

The rolled tobacco tax, an essential part of the Government Consolidated Tax, was administrated locally by officials of the Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau which maintained offices within the Settlement. The usual method adopted for the enforcement of this tax was for the Bureau to appoint special officers to the various factories where they scrutinised all cases of tobacco leaving the factory in order to ascertain that they bore the requisite revenue stamp. In the event of any cases of tobacco or tobacco products not having been given the necessary excise stamp, they were considered to be smuggled goods and were treated as such. This tax applied whether or not the goods were sold in the Settlement.

During 1931, flagrant tax evasion necessitated the adoption of a mode of action against those establishments within the Settlement which were breaking the law. As a result a special squad for the enforcement of the Rolled Tobacco Consolidated Tax Law was created by the Municipal Police.

The Shanghai Special District Branch of the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Bureau of Consolidated Tax Administration, previously known as "The Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei District Tax Bureau of the Internal Revenue Administration", was established at 277 Chengtu Road in 1928, and branch offices were established in various parts of the Settlement between 1928 and 1931. The functions of the head office comprised of the sale of tax stamps for cigarettes, matches, cement, flour, cotton yarn, etc. and keeping the records thereof, and those of the branches the supervision of the inspection of taxable merchandise in factories. The Shanghai Special District Branch was removed to 451 Taku Road in 1936. Immediately before the recent hostilities, it had nine branch offices in various parts of the Settlement and also an "Inspection and Testing Office" at No. 320 Kiangse Road. The head office at 451 Taku Road was closed by the Municipal Police on December 2, 1937, while all its branch offices in the Settlement either closed voluntarily or ceased functioning at about the same time.

At 3 p.m. December 30, 1937, the Internal Revenue Bureau of the National Government at 230 Kiukiang Road, which controlled the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau, was taken over by Major General, Masaichi Mori, under General Matsui (ex-Commander in Chief of Japanese forces in Central China), who visited the premises accompanied by a number of Chinese appointed by Zau Shih Chun ( 邵式軍 ), new director of the Bureau appointed by the Japanese Military. Control of the Shanghai Special District Branch of the Kiangsu-Chekiang and Anhwei Consolidated Tax Bureau, 451 Taku Road, was assumed by a representative of the new director Zau Shih Chun at 10.30 a.m., January 1, 1938.

Zau Shih Chun amalgamated the two bureaux which were redesignated as the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Revenue Bureau, which was formally opened on January 4, 1939, at No.230 Kiukiang Road.

The constitution of the Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Revenue Bureau (Japanese sponsored), No.230 Kiukiang Road, is briefly as follows:-

Under director Zau Shih Chun, appointed by the Japanese Military Authorities, this bureau has a staff of some 1,000 persons. There are also two Japanese advisors and 10 Japanese supervisors. The administrative authority is actually vested in the director and one of the Japanese advisors named

The bureau has seven sections, their duties being as follows:-

1st Section : General Affairs.

2nd to 6th Sections : Collection of consolidated tax on wheaten flour, cotton yarn, cement, matches, and rolled tobacco respectively.

7th Section : Prevention of Smuggling.

A smuggling prevention squad of some 70 persons has been established in the Hardoon Building, Nanking Road, but has not yet commenced functioning.

There is in addition, an Inspection Office in the premises of the Bureau at 230 Kiukiang Road, consisting of a staff of some 100 persons. Branch offices of the Inspection Office are reported to have been established at the following places:- (1) Boone Road, (2) Brennan Road, (3) Tung Chong Road, Pootung, and (4) Kwan Jao ( 閘橋 ), Nantao. A patrol boat of the Boone Road Branch and another of the Brennan Road Branch are found at ordinary times on the Soochow Creek at the Shansee Road Bridge and at the Jessfield Village respectively.

The Kiangsu-Chekiang-Anhwei Revenue Bureau is applying the same rules and taxes as laid down by the Ministry of Finance of the National Government. The taxes collected, after deducting the expenses, are believed to be handed over to the Japanese military authorities.

The Shanghai Municipal Council has afforded semi-official recognition to the new Bureau which reimburses the Council for the expenses involved in the upkeep of the Rolled Tobacco Tax Squad. This Squad cooperates with the Bureau in a normal manner except that court proceedings are avoided and goods seized for non-payment of tax are confiscated by the Council.
